OpenWork Workshop

What is?

Approach

Changing World of Work

OpenWork Workshops are designed to help companies adapt to the changing world of work- by improving the use of real estate assets while enhancing employee engagement. As companies reset their workplace and workforce strategies in the context of Covid-19, hybrid strategies combining working at the office, at home, or satellite spaces, are becoming the new normal. We facilitate discovery driven conversations so that your team can develop an approach that is aligned with your strategy, culture, and technology goals.

What if?

Framework

Design Thinking

OpenWork Workshops include Iterative, design-thinking exercises to support companies as they align their strategy to the new environment. Outcomes are not preconceived and we bring a spirit of co-creation to the process. It is often difficult for an organization to evaluate itself from within as it moves through rapid changes affecting its people, workplace and business imperatives. The OpenWork team - as knowledgeable outsiders - objectively see what may be invisible to those inside the organization.

What works?

SESSION #1

What is? + What if? Centers on strategic conversations: what is happening now, what is working, and what isn't working. Participants engage in blue sky thinking.

SESSION #2

What works? Explores participants' visions of what their company's future workplace strategy and ecology might look like to move forward as a team with a clear plan of action.
